Dear David,

Thanks so much for graciously flying to Australia to join us at our annual conference of Brain Injury Australia to screen and discuss "Going the Distance: Journeys of Recovery," your outstanding brain injury documentary. The screening and discussion were a big success and generated quite a positive response. Our attendees, staff, brain injury professionals and Brain Injury Australia's Board of Directors agreed that it was an excellent, moving documentary. And it was a special bonus that you produced the update video on your four brain injury survivors. Their stories are, and continue to be, very inspirational.

The feedback I received on the film emphasized how well-crafted it is, how inspirational the stories are, and how important they are for our community as models of the elements needed for a successful recovery from brain injury. People were especially moved by the role of the families in the recoveries. As you said in your comments, yours is a film about courage, persistence and love. Thanks, again, for sharing your moving film with - and for attending - our conference.

Kind regards,
